

Choir stall Holmfirth Sept 2014

Robert and Steve giving chocolate cake to drivers at the lights at the library.

It soon became obvious that talking about the choir and handing over leaflets and beer mats doesn't work. However giving cake, especially to the children, soon resulted in smiles followed by gratefully receiving choir literature.

Joint venture with Forget-Me-Not trust, our charity for the Willard White concert. They made £78 on tombola. The general view was great product but not enough footfall, even though we got rid of 144 slices of cake and made lots of contact with passers-by.

We are going to explore other sites in Holmfirth and Huddersfield to have a stall.